CREATIVITY CAN MAKE NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS MORE SUCCESSFUL

Every year, the most of us like to begin with a set of promises that we make to ourselves. We call them our new year resolutions and on the new year's eve, we swear to ourselves and to others that we will stick to those resolutions throughout the coming 365 days. How often are we able to do justice to those promises that we make? Well, most of us know the bitter answer is "hardly"!

This year, let's try creative ways to make our plans work. Let's make interesting resolutions that do not have to be a burden to follow but an enjoyable retreat that we like to embrace every now and then. It could be as simple as actually devoting time to our hobbies by cutting down on the hours we spend on useless things. Another way around it is to make resolutions that we already have in mind and just play around how to make them work. For example, suppose it is absolutely necessary for a person to start a pending project that does not really interest him or her then that person should come up with ideas that would make working on that project interesting. Similarly, if you choose to make a resolution of cutting down your intake of junk food, make it fun by rewarding yourself everytime you avoid junk food.

Use your creative side and make your resolutions more fulfilling. That way you will be amazed how you are able to succeed at following them for longer.
